Registered & Commercial Kiko producer

I have been raising goats since 2009 starting with commercials, and in 2014 deciding to start raising registered kikos. I have strived to produce the best goats under non-ideal conditions to produce elite kiko breeding stock. Some of the things I have personally strived for while breeding goats is to educate others on the breed and goats in general, give my time to helping at sales to make them run smoother, and mostly important to me is creating the friendships through breeders to help encourage others. I say that's the most important because with livestock we all know there are some days of the year that make you question why your even doing it, but with a close friend to encourage you to keep going it can help us all to make a better kiko.
